What I think to be successful is to be one that can be relied on and one that

00:11

you remember as having an impact.

00:23

The last three years that I've had her she has done the March of Dimes, we raise money for UNM, the hospital, and she's, her and her brother,

00:29

00:34

she has a twin brother and her twin brother's the vice president, and so both of them have always been real active. Every time there's an event she's there as well, whether we're doing the haunted house event, or the Twinkle Light Parade, or something for the Key Club.

00:39

00:43

00:53

There was a breast cancer walk that we did last semester that she actually initiated, and so it's almost like are you a pseudo admin or what buddy you want my job? I think McKenna will be a star she'll be a rock star in whatever she's doing.

00:59

01:04

01:08

I think what helped me most with my 01:09

community service was Kiwanis Club or Key Club at my high school that club is really great for different types of community service. For example, they do like food pantry like Roadrunner Food Bank or they go to elementary schools and help giving breakfast and snacks to kids there.

01:14

01:19

01:23

01:27

McKenna shares her time with everybody she's involved with and if it means that she spends a moment tutoring somebody that's a freshman that's struggling in Algebra

01:35

01:41

I or breast cancer awareness walk on a Saturday, you know, when she still has to go to track practice.

01:47

01:48

I think the impact that I'm able to make for my 01:51

community is what motivates me the most. I like to see positive change and so wherever I'm able to get my hands a little dirty or help someone better themselves in life I think that's what I look forward to the most.

01:55

02:00
