Nutrient information is approximate based on current product and recipe data in the utilized menu software and supplier information. While we make every effort to obtain the most current nutrient ingredient data and allergen information, it's possible that a manufacturer may change their formulation without the recipe analyst's knowledge.

Nutrition information provided on this website about our menu items is based on standardized recipes, representative values provided by the supplier, analysis using industry-standard software, published resources, or testing conducted in accredited laboratories, and is expressed in values based on federal rounding and other applicable regulations. A number of factors may affect the actual nutrition values for each product, and, as such, we cannot guarantee the complete accuracy of the nutritional information provided.
